

In September 1993, the Knights of St. Ann Parish provided food for two busloads of children, with only two hours prior notice. Barry Willett oversaw the mass organization. He received a call on a Sunday afternoon that children returning from the Papal visit in Denver Colorado were coming through town, and he arranged for hamburgers, hot dogs, chips and sodas for the children.